[P001]

英文原文

“Please, my Police brothers, please stop shooting. Please. We gather here peacefully and unarmed. Our representatives are negotiating with the government right now. No more bloodshed, please. We beg you. Please stop shooting.”

中文译文

“求求你们，警察兄弟们，请停止射击。求求你们。我们在这里和平集会，手无寸铁。我们的代表此刻正在与政府谈判。请不要再流血了。我们恳求你们，请停止射击。”

[P002]

英文原文

I remember that I kept repeating those words hundreds of times that morning—the same words, over and over, so that I did not need to think, because I could not think. From the back of the stage, as the voice of the demonstration, I tried to keep some semblance of order alive as long as possible. I could not think of anything else to do.

中文译文

我记得，那天早上我把这些话重复了数百遍——同样的话，一遍又一遍。这样我就不必思考，因为当时我根本无法思考。我在舞台后方，作为示威者的发声者，竭力维持哪怕一点点秩序，能维持多久就维持多久。我想不出还有什么别的事情可以做。

[P003]

英文原文

It was the most significant public speaking event of my life. But it was also the most irrelevant one. As I later learned, my disembodied voice was meaningful to thousands who were trapped inside Thammasat University (TU) under constant heavy fire. My voice did not help them at all, however.

中文译文

那是我一生中最重要的一次公开发言，却也是最不起作用的一次。后来我才知道，对于数千名困在法政大学（Thammasat University，简称 TU）校园内、不断遭受猛烈枪火袭击的人来说，我那只闻其声、不见其人的声音具有某种意义。然而，我的声音完全没能帮助他们。

[P004]

英文原文

I did not feel brave. I was terribly frightened. Only my awareness of those thousands under siege inside Thammasat kept me from abandoning the stage and running away.

中文译文

我并不觉得自己勇敢。我怕得要命。只是因为我始终意识到，法政大学里还有数千人被围困，我才没有丢下舞台逃走。

[P005]

英文原文

At the time of the massacre I was a second-year student at Thammasat. I had been an activist since high school, joining a group of rebellious students who were dissatisfied with the state of Thai education. I became the leader of a national organization of high school students in 1974. Throughout my high school years, I spent more time at protest sites, political demonstrations, printing shops, and meetings than in classrooms.

中文译文

大屠杀发生时，我是法政大学的二年级学生。我从高中起就参加社会运动，加入了一群对泰国教育现状不满的反叛学生。1974年，我成为一个全国性高中生组织的领导人。在整个高中时期，我花在抗议现场、政治示威、印刷厂和会议上的时间，比待在教室里的时间还多。

[P006]

英文原文

I was part of a circle of student leaders at TU in my freshman year in 1975 and became vice president of the TU Student Union in my second year. By 1976, I was a member of the leadership collective for the national-level student movement that organized many major protests, including the fateful one on October 6.

中文译文

1975年，我读大学一年级时，便是法政大学学生领袖圈子中的一员；到二年级，我担任了法政大学学生会副主席。到1976年，我已是全国学生运动领导集体的一员。这个集体组织了许多重大抗议活动，包括10月6日那场决定命运的抗议。

[P007]

英文原文

In early 1976, I was assigned by the leadership collective to be the main speaker in charge of controlling the crowd at major protests. On October 6, 1976, I was on the stage in front of the protesters throughout the night before the killing. It was my voice they heard during the final morning hours under siege.

中文译文

1976年初，领导集体指派我在大型抗议活动中担任主要发言人，负责维持现场秩序。1976年10月6日，在杀戮发生前的整个夜晚，我一直站在抗议者面前的舞台上。被围困的最后几个清晨时刻，人们听到的就是我的声音。

[P008]

英文原文

Around midnight, the campus security post at a main entrance of the campus was torched. During the next few hours, flashes of light mixed with the sound of explosions of small homemade bombs erupting from time to time. Around 2 a.m., our security guards informed us that the campus was surrounded not only by the usual paramilitary groups like the Red Gaurs, but also by the police. As the night wore on, the gunshots intensified.

中文译文

午夜前后，校园一处主要入口的保安岗亭遭人纵火。接下来的几个小时里，时不时传来小型自制炸弹的爆炸声，夹杂着闪光。凌晨2点左右，我们的保安人员告诉我们，包围校园的不只是像“红牛”（Red Gaurs）那样惯常出现的准军事组织，还有警察。夜色越深，枪声越密集。

[P009]

英文原文

About 5:30 a.m., a very loud, high pitched sound frightened me. Boom! The ground shook. I could see several bodies on the ground in that area and realized what had happened. Shortly afterward, I was told that four people had been killed instantly and dozens with serious injuries needed to go to the hospital. I was enraged. Our thought may be deemed radical, but our protest and actions had been peaceful. We never used violence, never hurt anybody. We had talked about the possibility of a violent suppression by the state. But we could not really envision it. Sure, right-wing goons had attacked earlier demonstrations. But we knew how to deal with those kinds of attacks. We were aware of the worsening political situation. But we never anticipated the horrific and cruel raid that had just begun. Those kinds of things happened in other countries.

中文译文

大约清晨5点30分，一声尖锐而巨大的声响把我吓坏了。轰！地面都震动了。我看见那片区域的地上躺着几个人，便意识到发生了什么。此后不久，有人告诉我，四个人当场死亡，另有数十人受重伤，需要送往医院。我愤怒极了。我们的思想也许会被认为激进，但我们的抗议和行动始终是和平的。我们从未使用暴力，从未伤害任何人。我们讨论过国家可能以暴力镇压，但并不能真正想象那样的事情。诚然，右翼暴徒袭击过此前的示威，不过我们知道如何应对那类袭击。我们

知道政治局势正在恶化，却从未预料到眼前刚刚开始的这场骇人而残酷的突袭。我们以为，这类事情只会发生在别的国家。

[P010]

英文原文

It was only a few days after my nineteenth birthday. To this day, I vividly recall how terribly shaken I was when I pleaded in tears to the crowd for vehicles and volunteers to take injured people to the hospital. How angry and frustrated I was when I learned that the vans with injured people were lined up at the campus gate because the police refused to let them out to go to the hospital. I wept like mad. I still do not understand why they did not let the injured out. Even in war movies, the injured are allowed medical care. But somehow, when it comes to conflicting political views, opponents are no longer human and can be slaughtered. . . .

中文译文

那时距离我十九岁生日才过了几天。直到今天，我还清楚记得自己当时受到多么巨大的震动：我流着泪向人群请求车辆和志愿者，把伤者送往医院。后来得知，载着伤者的面包车在校门口排成长队，因为警察不肯放行，不让他们去医院，我是何等愤怒和沮丧。我哭得几乎失控。直到现在，我仍不明白他们为什么不让伤者出去。即使在战争电影里，伤员也可以接受医疗救治。可是，不知为什么，一旦涉及政治观点的冲突，对手就不再被当作人，可以任人屠杀……

[P011]

英文原文

We gathered in the soccer field because the buildings surrounding it would protect us from small-scale attacks by goons outside. It did not occur to us that such a semi-enclosed site would be easy to blockade, that we could be trapped. And those buildings were not enough to protect us from an M79 grenade attack. Worse, inexperienced as we were, as the attacks increased, all we could think to do was move people from the open field to the buildings for shelter. We did not foresee that in doing so people would become easier targets for the shelling that continued for hours that morning. A site chosen for safety turned out to be fatal.

中文译文

我们聚集在足球场上，是因为周围的建筑能够保护我们，抵挡外面暴徒的小规模袭击。我们没有想到，这样一个半封闭的地方很容易遭到封锁，我们可能会被困住。那些建筑也不足以保护我们免受M79榴弹袭击。更糟的是，由于缺乏经验，随着袭击越来越猛烈，我们唯一想得到的办法，就是把人们从空旷的球场转移到建筑物里躲避。我们没有预见到，这样做反而会使人们更容易成为那天早晨持续数小时的炮击目标。原本为安全而选择的场地，最终成了致命之地。

[P012]

英文原文

At first, just after midnight, the firing from the outside had been occasional, a few shots at a time. From 2 a.m. on, it turned into an occasional round of automatic fire with long intervals between rounds. Around 4 a.m., the firing became more frequent and intense from several machine guns at a time. At dawn after the deadly M79 explosion, the sound of automatic weapons became overwhelming. It was almost nonstop, with only ten-to-fifteen-second intervals every five minutes or so. The shooting lasted for several hours, though it felt like forever to me.

中文译文

起初，刚过午夜，外面的射击只是偶尔发生，每次几枪。从凌晨2点起，变成偶尔一轮自动武器射击，各轮之间间隔很长。凌晨4点左右，数挺机枪同时开火，射击变得更加频繁而猛烈。黎明时分，在那次致命的M79爆炸之后，自动武器的声音变得铺天盖地。枪声几乎没有间断，大约每五分钟才出现一次十到十五秒的停顿。射击持续了好几个小时，不过在我感觉中仿佛永无止境。

[P013]

英文原文

I can still recall how I felt, begging repeatedly hundreds of times. I felt embarrassed. Throughout the demonstration the night before, we had criticized the state and its apparatus as dictatorial and oppressive. Our rhetoric was combative and aggressive. However, that morning the only thing I did was beg the police to spare our lives, as though I were crawling at their feet. At that moment, I felt ashamed.

中文译文

我仍记得自己数百次反复哀求时的感受。我感到难堪。前一晚的示威中，我们一直谴责国家及其机构实行独裁和压迫。我们的言辞充满斗争性和攻击性。然而，那天早晨，我所做的唯一事情，就是乞求警察饶我们一命，仿佛自己正匍匐在他们脚下。那一刻，我感到羞耻。

[P014]

英文原文

Despite that, I continued begging them, hundreds of times, to stop shooting.

中文译文

尽管如此，我仍旧一遍又一遍、数百次地恳求他们停止射击。

[P015]

英文原文

I learned afterward that some friends were upset that I gave in and begged for mercy. But I could not urge people to continue to fight. I hoped that the police might let up, that some negotiation between our organizers and the government might bear fruit. That was my thought—a desperate and false hope. . . .

中文译文

后来我得知，一些朋友因为我屈服并乞求宽恕而感到不满。但我无法再号召人们继续战斗。我希望警察也许会稍稍收手，我们的组织者与政府之间的谈判也许能够取得成果。这就是我当时的想法——一种绝望而虚幻的希望……

[P016]

英文原文

Looking out from the stage at the edge of the soccer field, on the opposite side from the battlefront, I saw a few of our security guards on the ground. They were not moving any more. I saw people trying to break into the buildings, trying to hide. One was shot down. Looking to the right, I saw a man trying to run from a building toward a path and escape. But he did not make it. I saw with my own eyes hundreds of helpless lives. Angry and bitter, fearful and desperate, I could not lift anyone’s spirit when I myself was too dejected and dispirited. Hope-less-ness.

中文译文

我从位于足球场边缘、远离交火前线的舞台向外望去，看见我们几个保安人员倒在地上。他们已经一动不动。我看见人们试图闯进建筑物藏身，其中一人被击倒。我向右边望去，看见一个人试图从一栋楼里跑向小路逃走，但没能成功。我亲眼看见数百条无助的生命。愤怒、苦涩、恐惧、绝望交织在一起，连我自己都已经如此沮丧和消沉，根本不可能鼓舞任何人的士气。毫——无——希——望。

[P017]

英文原文

All I knew was that if the voice from the stage stopped, people might despair even more. It did not matter what I said. I did not utter any spirited words or combative slogans. I did not help anyone who got shot either. We were a few lives sitting hopelessly together behind the stage. We were only half alive.

中文译文

我只知道，如果舞台上的声音停下来，人们也许会陷入更深的绝望。我说什么其实并不重要。我没有喊出任何振奋人心的话，也没有喊任何战斗口号。我同样没能帮助任何中枪的人。我们这几个人毫无希望地坐在舞台后面。我们仿佛只剩下半条命。

[P018]

英文原文

Crash! A loud noise came around 7:30 a.m. That was the last time I recall looking at my watch. I learned later that a bus had smashed the gate of the campus main entrance, allowing the police and a huge group of angry people to storm onto campus while a frenzied crowd waited outside. Once inside Thammasat, the police advanced slowly.

中文译文

哐当！大约早上7点30分，传来一声巨响。那是我记得自己最后一次看手表的时间。后来我才知道，一辆公共汽车撞开校园正门，警察和一大群愤怒的人冲入校园，而外面还聚集着一群狂热的人。进入法政大学以后，警察缓缓向前推进。

[P019]

英文原文

At first, I could see that they crawled while shooting at students who were trapped inside the buildings. Later, probably realizing that no one was offering any significant resistance, the police got up on their knees, taking more shots as they lined up in two rows along the small road in front of the Law School Building. Later, probably realizing that there was absolutely no resistance, the police got to their feet and walked confidently, firing freely at various targets they could see.

中文译文

起初，我看见他们一边匍匐前进，一边向困在建筑物里的学生开枪。后来，他们大概发现并没有人进行任何像样的抵抗，就跪起身来，沿着法学院大楼前的小路排成两行，继续开枪。再后来，他们可能意识到完全没有抵抗，便站起身来，自信地走着，随意向视线内的各种目标开火。

[P020]

英文原文

We took shelter in the building behind the stage, I wept for a long while. Finally my brother, Ngao, who had been with me behind the stage all night, told me we had to leave. He and I followed the last group of people to exit the building. We ran across a garden and got into the river, where a lot of people were walking along the shallow bank toward the Tha Phrachan Gate. It was the only way out. Most got up from the river at the Liberal Arts Building next to the gate. Many people ran safely out before the police could arrest them. But many others were not as lucky: they were rounded up and forced to lie face down in the street alongside the Mahathat Temple, adjacent to Thammasat.

中文译文

我们躲进舞台后面的建筑物，我哭了很久。最后，整夜都和我待在舞台后面的哥哥 Ngao 告诉我，我们必须离开。他和我跟着最后一批人走出大楼。我们跑过一片花园，进入河中，那里有许多人沿着浅水河岸朝塔帕占门（Tha Phrachan Gate）走去。这是唯一的出路。大多数人在校门旁的文学院大楼处从河里爬上岸。很多人赶在警察抓捕前安全逃了出去，但还有许多人没有那么幸运：他们遭到围捕，被迫面朝下趴在与法政大学相邻的玛哈泰寺（Mahathat Temple）旁边的街道上。

[P021]

英文原文

By the time we got to the Liberal Arts Building, the gate was closed. Suddenly a police officer appeared briefly at the pier nearby, spraying our group with bullets. When he left, we jumped into the river and got out at a narrow lane beside the river. I had lived in one of the shop-houses there since I was born. I wanted to go home. Ngao told me to keep running. I was confused, but I followed him. I learned later that the police had searched my house looking for me. They took away everybody who had taken shelter there, including another of my brothers. After hitting him with a rifle, they took him to prison even though he hadn't been involved and was at home all night. . . .

中文译文

等我们到达文学院大楼时，校门已经关上。突然，一名警察在附近的码头短暂出现，朝我们这群人扫射。他走后，我们跳进河里，又从河边一条狭窄的小巷上岸。我出生以来就住在那里的其中一间店屋里。我想回家，Ngao却让我继续跑。我很困惑，但还是跟着他。后来我得知，警察曾搜查我家，想找到我。他们带走了所有在那里避难的人，包括我的另一个哥哥。他们先用枪打了他，随后把他送进监狱，尽管他根本没有参与示威，整晚都待在家中……

[P022]

英文原文

We ran to an empty market space. . . . Dozens of people were there before us. One way out was toward the street where police waited to round us up. The other was to jump into the river.

中文译文

我们跑到一个空荡荡的市场空地……那里已经有几十个人。一个出口通向街道，警察正在那里等着抓捕我们；另一个选择是跳进河里。

[P023]

英文原文

With a small group of people, I walked slowly in the water under the riverside houses lining the bank. After only a short distance, two Border Patrol Police on shore pointed their M16 rifles at us, ordering us to get out of the water and surrender. One man in our group trod on some sharp object in the water. He could not pull himself up. One of the policemen yelled, about to fire his rifle at him. We were all shocked, screaming frantically, and helped push the man up on shore. All the men were ordered to take off their shirts and surrender all their belongings, including glasses. We had to follow along a small lane lined with dozens of Border Patrol Police with heavy weapons until we got to the main street. There, the police forced everybody to lie face down, bare chested, on the asphalt street that runs alongside one of the best-known Buddhist temples in the country.

中文译文

我和一小群人一起，沿着岸边一排房屋下方的河水慢慢走。还没走多远，岸上两名边境巡逻警察（Border Patrol Police）就用M16步枪指着我们，命令我们出水投降。我们当中有个人在水里踩到了尖锐的东西，无法自己爬上岸。一名警察大喊着，正要向他开枪。我们都吓坏了，疯狂地

尖叫，并合力把那个人推上岸。所有男性都被命令脱下上衣，交出所有随身物品，包括眼镜。我们不得不沿着一条小巷前进，巷子两边站着几十名携带重型武器的边境巡逻警察，直到走到大街上。警察在那里强迫所有人赤裸上身、面朝下趴在柏油路上。这条路就在全国最著名的佛教寺庙之一旁边。

[P024]

英文原文

Then a policeman came near shouting the names of Pichian and Thongchai.1 Pichian was not at Thammasat that night. Me—I was there. On my right, my brother Ngao put his arm over my head and shoulder. Then the man on my left, whose face I did not see, moved closer to me and put his arm over my other shoulder too. Both tried to prevent me from responding to the call. I stayed still, not because I was smart, but because I was not in a state to respond to anything.

中文译文

随后，一名警察走近，大喊着 Pichian 和 Thongchai 的名字。 那晚 Pichian 不在法政大学，而我——我在那里。在我右边，哥哥 Ngao 把一只胳膊搭在我的头和肩上。随后，我左边一个看不清面孔的人也靠近过来，把一只胳膊搭在我的另一边肩上。两个人都想阻止我回应呼喊。我一动不动，并不是因为我机灵，而是因为当时我根本没有能力对任何事情作出反应。

[P025]

英文原文

After the shooting was over, we remained in the street for what seemed like a long while, although I’m not sure how long it really was. . . . It took a long time for the bus to take us from the street near Thammasat to the prison on the outskirts of Bangkok. When we got off the bus, the police lined up, throwing punches and kicks at each of us. But I did not feel anything. I was still numb. My mind must have wandered. Perhaps shame gripped me. Why did I leave Thammasat?

中文译文

枪击结束后，我们在街上待了很久似的，虽然我不确定究竟过了多长时间……大巴花了很久才把我们从法政大学附近的街道送到曼谷郊外的监狱。我们下车时，警察排成一排，对每个人拳打脚踢。但我什么都感觉不到，仍旧麻木不仁。我的思绪一定飘到了别处。也许羞耻感紧紧攫住了我。我为什么离开了法政大学?

[P026]

英文原文

Ngao stayed with me all the way to the prison cell. For a few days, I did not cry even once. I cannot remember much about those first few days in prison. No fear or anxiety. Nothing. I could not remember talking to Ngao or anybody else during the first few days in jail even though a few people told me years later that they had been glad to meet me in prison during those few days and know I was alive. One told me that he had given me his glasses before he was released on bail. I could not recall meeting him, though I realized after a few days that I was wearing somebody else's glasses.

中文译文

Ngao 一直陪着我，直到进入牢房。接连几天，我一次也没有哭。我记不清入狱最初几天的许多事情。没有恐惧，没有焦虑。什么都没有。那几天，我不记得自己和 Ngao 或任何其他人说过话，尽管多年后有几个人告诉我，他们当时很高兴在监狱里见到我，知道我还活着。其中一个人说，他获保释前把自己的眼镜给了我。我不记得见过他，但几天后确实发现自己戴着别人的眼镜。

[P027]

英文原文

The police called everyone in for registration and interrogation. For unknown reasons, my cell was the last one the police came to, three days after our arrest. Then they finally found out, "Thongchai's been arrested!" as one newspaper headlined it the following day, even though I had been in their hands the entire time. A few days later, in the middle of the night, a number of us—the alleged ringleaders— were taken from our cells in pairs, loaded into police vans, rushed to somewhere far away. I thought that was the end for me. As it turned out, we only spent one night away, at various places under police detention, before we were transported back to the prison the following day. Throughout those initial days in prison, I was not afraid anymore. No, I did not feel brave. Rather, I did not feel anything. Perhaps nothing could be worse than being in Thammasat on that Wednesday morning.

中文译文

警察叫每个人去登记和接受讯问。不知为什么，他们最后才来到我的牢房，那已是我们被捕三天以后。这时他们才终于发现：“Thongchai 被捕了！”第二天一份报纸用这句话作标题，尽管我一直都在他们手中。几天后，半夜里，我们当中几个所谓的带头人被两两带出牢房，塞进警车，匆匆送往远处某个地方。我以为自己就要没命了。结果，我们只在外面过了一夜，分别被关押在警方的不同拘留地点，第二天又被押回监狱。入狱最初那些日子，我再也不害怕了。不，我并不觉得自己勇敢，而是什么感觉也没有。也许，没有什么会比那个星期三早晨身处法政大学更加可怕。

[P028]

英文原文

For a few years after the massacre, I was vengeful. I dreamed of a Communist Party victory, a just outcome after the state's cruelty. This probably helped me suppress the guilt I had been feeling about leaving Thammasat that morning. But it was just another naïve and pitiful hope that eventually evaporated. . . .

中文译文

大屠杀之后的几年里，我一直想着报复。我梦想泰国共产党获胜，让国家的残酷行径最终得到公正的结局。这大概帮助我压抑了因那天早晨离开法政大学而产生的负罪感。但那不过是另一种天真而可悲的希望，最终也烟消云散……

[P029]

英文原文

In mid-1996, a friend called from Bangkok, informing me about a plan to visit the parents of Jaruphong Thongsin, a good friend who had carried out his responsibility to clear people out of the Student Union Building until it was too late for him. But his parents did not know about his death and still hoped for his return. I did not know what to say to them. What could I say about why Jaruphong did not return home and I did?

中文译文

1996年年中，一位朋友从曼谷打电话给我，告诉我他们计划去探望 Jaruphong Thongsin 的父母。Jaruphong 是我的一位好朋友；他一直尽责地帮助人们撤离学生会大楼，结果等他自己想离开时已经太迟了。然而，他的父母并不知道他已经去世，仍然盼望他回来。我不知道该对他们说些什么。我该如何解释，为什么 Jaruphong 没能回家，而我却回来了？

[P030]

英文原文

History is so cruel, in every sense of the word, and utterly irrational too.

历史是如此残酷，无论从哪个意义上说都是如此，而且也完全不讲道理。
